Soaring Gas Prices - What is the Real Cost?

By Ron Sparks

As long as we keep filling up the gas tanks of our cars and trucks, gas prices will continue to keep increasing. Lately, consumers are desperate to find ways to conserve energy and cut costs. With continuing uncertainty for the future of oil imports from other countries, Alabama needs to ensure that we are able to provide independence from foreign oil.

As you know, the Department of Agriculture and Industries is deeply committed to finding alternative fuel sources. While the department does not set gas prices, we inspect and regulate the gas pumps to make sure consumers are getting the quality and amount of fuel that they pay for. Also, Alabama's number one industry is agriculture, so it is only natural that we help research and implement methods to create and use bioenergy as an alternative fuel source. The use of renewable resources like switchgrass, ethanol, and biodiesel help both Alabama's consumers and farmers.

Drilling for oil in Alaska has been a controversial subject in Congress for many years. I can understand the environmental concerns people have. The idea of pristine wilderness being devastated by machinery and workers looking for fuel is as upsetting to many Americans as it was to me. Because of this, I have tried to learn more about oil and gas exploration in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge (ANWR). I was surprised to discover that only 2,000 to 5,000 acres out of about 19 million acres of ANWR would be used. This seems like a small price for being able to supply the United States with oil.

With soaring gas prices over the last few years, we must do more. Prices have been dropping in recent weeks, but only by a few cents. The more we can do to become less dependent on other countries the better. High gas prices have a ripple effect on the economy, especially for farmers and producers. With higher costs of fuel, transportation and production expenses also rise, which affects prices of necessary items such as food and clothing. We should be open to all options that are available.

America has an insatiable appetite for oil, gas, and coal that is used for energy. In fact, 88% of our nation's energy is from these sources. It has been estimated that more than half of the petroleum needed in the United States was imported from other countries in 2004. The petroleum resources that are projected to exist in ANWR could provide between 6,000,000 and 16,000,000 barrels of oil, which could mean a domestic supply of oil for Alabama that could last more than a hundred years.

While I do not believe we should haphazardly plunder our forests and wilderness, I do think we should use our resources wisely. It is important to consider that in the 2004 fiscal year alone, Alabama brought in almost 2.6 billion gallons of fuel to be sold. As long as we continue to rely on foreign countries to fill our vehicle's tanks with gasoline, prices will continue to rise, so we must find alternative sources of fuel.

I also want to assure you that our department is working every day to make sure that the gas pumps in this state dispense fuel accurately.

Alabama Department of Agriculture and Industries Light Weights Inspector, Bo Joiner, tests a gasoline pump for accuracy. The five gallon container shown in the photo above verifies that the pump is dispensing the exact amount of fuel that is displayed on the digital monitor. Mr. Joiner along with several other inspectors check gas stations daily all across the state to assure Alabama consumers that they are receiving an accurate measure of fuel. If you are concerned about the accuracy of a gas pump in your area, please contact the Alabama Department of Agriculture & Industries, Light Weights and Measures Division, at 1-800-642-7761 ext. 7130.

Comprehensive Fire Ant Management Workshop

A comprehensive fire ant management workshop will be conducted Thursday, May 19th from 11:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. at the Anniston City Meeting Center. Members of the Alabama Fire Ant Management Team and faculty specialists from Auburn University and Alabama A&M will share the latest information relating to control of these pests.

Featured speakers include: Dr. Ken Ward, Fire Ant Biology; Dr. Kathy Flanders, Fire Ant Materials and Costs; Dr. Fudd Graham, Biological Fire Ant Control; Dr. Xing Ping Hu, Fire Ants in the Home.

Following the speakers Regional and County Extension Agents will conduct three workshops: Workshop 1 will be for agricultural producers: cattle, poultry, nursery and sod farms; Workshop 2 will be for area homeowners; Workshop 3 will be for managers of public use areas: schools, parks, and recreation areas.

Workshops will focus on the safe application of materials appropriate to each site. Agents will demonstrate application techniques, calibration of spreaders and answer questions about fire ant management. Educational materials, publications and cd's will be provided to workshop participants.

A portion of each workshop will be devoted to a demonstration of phorid flies (decapitating flies), a biological control agent being introduced under the leadership of Dr. Fudd Graham.

Workshop space may be limited. Please notify the Alabama Cooperative Extension Office - Calhoun County (256) 237-1621 to reserve your space. Let them know how many will be coming and which workshop (1, 2 or 3) they would like to attend. Pesticide points will be available for Restricted Pesticide Applicators.

The meeting is sponsored by the Alabama Cooperative Extension System, Coosa Valley R.C. and D. Council, Calhoun County Farmers Federation and the Alabama Fire Ant Management Program.

For more information contact any of the following: Stan Roark, Regional Extension Agent - 256/357-2841; Dr. David West, Calhoun County Coordinator - 256/237-1621; Dr. Kathy Flanders, Extension Entomology Specialist - 334/844-6393.
